

Court approves dramatic reforms

THE COURT OF APPEALS has approved a series of dramatic reforms to the way in which the courts are run, including the introduction of a new system of judges and a new system of appeals.

The reforms, which are being introduced by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Irvine, will mean that the courts will be run by a new system of judges, and that the appeals will be heard by a new system of judges.

The reforms will also mean that the courts will be run by a new system of judges, and that the appeals will be heard by a new system of judges.

The reforms will also mean that the courts will be run by a new system of judges, and that the appeals will be heard by a new system of judges.

The Davidsonson

Spencer rescinds job offer from Jewish Professor

THE LORD CHANCELLOR, Lord Irvine, has announced that he has rescinded a job offer to a Jewish professor, who had been offered a job at the University of Oxford.

The professor, who is Jewish, had been offered a job at the University of Oxford, but the offer has now been rescinded.

The professor, who is Jewish, had been offered a job at the University of Oxford, but the offer has now been rescinded.

The professor, who is Jewish, had been offered a job at the University of Oxford, but the offer has now been rescinded.

Study in India offered

A study in India has been offered to a group of students, who are currently studying in the UK.

A study in India has been offered to a group of students, who are currently studying in the UK.