

The Davidson Men's Basketball team wishes our fellow athletes and members of the community well. As we reflect on the reality of our country, we find grief and sadness with a momentary feeling of outrage and loss of hope. The true beauty of our sport comes from our shared experiences... and those feelings of gratitude we frequently encounter because of our diversity. We are unified in our diversity and it makes us stronger. That is our hope for America.

Everytime we enter or leave our locker room, we tap our "TCC" sign, which stands for Trust Commitment Care. It is the honor of our program, our team motto. It is imperative to trust goodness in people, regardless of race. Trust that black people are not inferior or threatening. Trust the hearts of people across all backgrounds. Trust their decency. It is also imperative to be committed to change. Can we commit to treating people with decency and respect regardless of race. Can we commit and strive to promote equality and condemn racism. And finally, care. Care about people and their safety. Care about making a difference in our quest for a just society.
